Morrison Trial

(Telegraph Special Service)

Morrison, Ill. Jan. 29—(AP)—Judges Searles of Rock Island, presiding at the second trial of John Cominsky, Fulton farmer, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Marie McKee, night telephone operator at Fulton, last September, this morning tentatively admitted evidence of finger prints over the strenuous objections of former State's Attorney J. J. Ludens, who is defending the young man, whose first trial, last November, resulted in a disagreement of the jury.

Immediately after the court had admitted the introduction of evidence concerning finger prints, following a discussion while the jury was excluded, Deputy Sheriff J. W. Kelly of Whiteside county told of photographing the finger prints found on the bed in which the dead woman's body was found, and on the window at the rear of the telephone office, over a store in Fulton, through which the woman's slayer is alleged to have gained entrance.

Herbert Reinert, finger print expert of the Rockford, Ill., police department was positive in his assertion that the prints obtained at the telephone office and those of Cominsky's fingers were identical, and the state affirms that his testimony will be corroborated this afternoon by William Evans, Chicago police expert, whose testimony on this detail was said to have been the source of disagreement by the jury at the first trial.

Judge Harry Edwards of Dixon was an interested listener at today's session of the trial.

Get "Hanging Jury"

A "hanging jury" was selected yesterday to try the case. Seven farmers and five business men comprising its personnel.

In questioning venireman State's Attorney R. W. Deese who is leading the prosecution, repeatedly asked jury prospects whether or not they believed in capital punishment. The 12 selected favor a death penalty on conviction for murder.

In his opening statement Attorney Deese promised to prove that Cominsky was guilty of murder.

Dixon high school students assembled in the big assembly room at the south side high school this morning and engaged in an enthusiastic preliminary meeting, preliminary to the hardest game of the Rock River Valley conference schedule this evening with Mt. Morris on the latter's floor. With a material moderation in the weather, a banner crowd from Dixon was assured at Mt. Morris tonight when the leadership and possibly the championship of the conference basketball title will be decided.

Couch A. C. Bowers has been putting his men through rigid practice all week. The guarding practice was abandoned entirely and every minute of the time given over to the shooting of baskets from every angle of the floor. Not only will a large crowd of students be present at the game, this evening but local fans will be well represented.

ATTEMPT TO BEAT
BOARD BILL POOR
MOVE BY W. SCOTTFinds Himself in Lee Co.
Jail as Result of His Arrest

Willis Scott of this city was arrested Thursday by Deputy Sheriff W. J. Rose on a warrant charging defrauding a board bill, for which he was held in jail and costs by Justice Martin J. Gannon. After this case had been settled the chief deputy served a warrant on Scott in which he was charged with the transportation and possession of intoxicating liquor.

An information was filed in the county court where Judge Leech fined Scott $100 and costs and sentenced him to serve 60 days in the county jail, to stand committed until the fine and costs were paid. The warrant on the liquor violation was sworn out in July after Scott had been placed under arrest by a deputy sheriff in Lowell park. About the first of July, special deputies serving as park police, opened up a campaign to rid the park of gamblers and crap shooters who were said to be using the park property until early hours in the morning. Scott was said to have offered to sell a drink of liquor to one of the deputies for 50 cents when his party was taken unawares and a crap game broken up.

On the way from the park to the county jail, Scott is alleged to have made his escape and was absent from the city for some time. The warrant was out against him yesterday charging him with attempting to beat a board bill brought about his double prosecution.

Blair, with a score of years as school head, will seek re-election.

Coast guards who watched helplessly ashore said last night the steamer Alabama which went to the rescue of the imprisoned tugs, had approached near enough to give the men food and fuel which, the escaped trio said were the greatest needs. Two army pilots were ready to drop cans of food and forty pound cartons of coal on the craft today.

Fire Accompany Cold

Suffering caused by the cold in Chicago was dotted with numerous fires, which in one case drove forty families to the streets. The water main burst and flooded a street with thousands of gallons of water, freezing automobiles to the pavement, turning basements into skating rinks and putting out furnace fires for blocks. Firemen responded to nearly 150 calls within twelve hours up to dawn today.

Firemen in New York City had their helmets frozen to their shoulders. The metropolis had the coldest weather of the season with the mercury at five above zero and an 84 mile gale blowing, but no snow.

Elsewhere in the Empire state, wind-driven, snow-blocked highways impeded traffic. The gale blew down an 80 foot smokestack in Solway N. Y., and the Adirondacks were in the grip of the season's worst storm lasting 24 hours.

Seven were injured in Boston where a westerly gale and snow crippled telephone and power service. High winds and snow blocked the roads in western Pennsylvania, where temperatures hovered between zero at Pittsburgh and 10 below at Bradford.

Eastern Pennsylvania had no snow but the mercury was low, Philadelphia reporting 14 above.

Weather forecasters promised rising temperatures today to the central section which felt zero and sub-zero weather yesterday. A fresh southerly wind from sections where the cold did not touch was expected to bring relief.

Snow and a rising mercury were the outlook for the northwest which yesterday was the coldest part of the country. Duluth, Minn., reported 30 below and St. Paul's minimum was 18. Points in Wisconsin reported as low as 25 below. Chicago's official lowest was 7 below, but unofficial thermometers read as low as 11.

No relief for rain, snow and wind was promised the Pacific section.

Storm warnings were posted along an 80 mile stretch from Point Reyes to Cape Flattery. Rain or snow fell over Nevada, Idaho, eastern Oregon and Washington and northern California and above Dunsmuir, Calif., the snowfall measured five inches. The heavy seas delayed the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of India due today from the Far East at Vanouver.

BULLETIN

Trinidad, Colo., Jan. 29—(AP)—Twenty six miners were entrapped by an explosion in the Bear Canon Coal Company mine at Berwind near here today. First reports here said that many of the miners had been injured but none killed. The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

West Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 29—(AP)—Five men were killed and three slightly injured today in a local gas explosion in the New Orient coal mine here, which holds the world's eight hour production record.

The dead are: Jerry Roach, Arlie Sanders, Elijah Hindman, Floyd Kerns and Ed Tobert.

More than 1100 men were in the mine at the time of the explosion, the cause of which could not be determined.

Blast Not Explained

The explosion occurred about 500 feet below the surface when Hindman, a "safety man," entered a small section of the mine to clear it of gas. None of the survivors could explain how the gas was ignited. No fire followed the explosion and good order was maintained.

This was the first explosion at the mine, which is owned by the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Co.

Those slightly injured were Frank Caughan, Clarence Gant and James Moore. None was taken to the hospital.

The surface plant of the mine was severely damaged by the tornado which struck West Frankfort last March 18.

SAFETY DEVICES WORKED

Chicago, Jan. 29—(AP)—Five workers were killed today in an explosion in the Orient Mine, one of the largest in the world but safety measures saved about 1000 other miners from injury. G. B. Harrington, president of the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Company declared after receiving advices concerning the blast.

Telegrams from the mine at West Frankfort in Franklin County stated that the blast was a local explosion at the face of an isolated entrance in the northwestern section of the huge workings and that the safety devices worked perfectly shutting off that channel from the rest of the mine.

The Orient, which has several times broken the world's record for daily output and is noted in mining circles.

Had Marked Entrance

"The mine had been inspected as usual," said Mr. Harrington. "The mine inspector had marked off this entrance, past which marking none was supposed to go."

"How these five men happened to pass that mark or just what set off the explosion of gas we do not know. All of them are dead. Smoking, of course, is forbidden and the men were equipped with safety lamps."

"The fact that more than a thousand men were at work in other parts of the mine and escaped indicates the value of safety measures such as are in use in modern mines like the Orient."

Complainants Failed to Prefer Charges in Case

Danville, Ill., Jan. 29—(AP)—Failure of complaining witnesses to file formal complaints resulted in the dropping of charges of larceny, transportation and possession of liquor and intoxication against five Champaign young men in the city court here this morning. Only charges of disorderly conduct carried through, each paying a fine of $5 and costs.

The five were: W. T. Armstrong, Ted Hackett, Art Waupner, W. C. Fitzhugh and L. R. Boyce. Following complaint of the theft of a hotel register, the quintet was picked up in a motor car. In the car were three signs stolen from local business houses.

Permitted to Retire From Army Feb. 1 as He Wishes

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The resignation of Colonel William Mitchell from the army has been accepted.

In accordance with his expressed wishes, the air service officer will be permitted to step out February 1, thus automatically bringing to a head the five year suspension to which he was sentenced by a court martial after conviction of breaking discipline by his criticisms of the government's aviation policies.

The decision was announced in this statement by Secretary Davis of the war department.

"The Secretary of War has decided that the resignation of Colonel William Mitchell, air service, will be accepted to take effect February 1, 1926. The adjutant general of the army has been notified to this effect."

Nothing beyond this brief announcement was made public.

It was learned, however, that the acceptance was unconditional and did not hinge on any formal notation that it was "for the good of the service."

Informing by the Associated Press of the decision to accept his resignation, Colonel Mitchell would make no comment.

There is no doubt, however, that the airman is planning to begin an active public campaign in support of his views as to the aviation necessities of the national defense. He probably will carry his fight to the country through the medium of the chautauqua circuits.

STATE'S DELAY IN PURCHASING PINES COSTLY

Value of Resort in Ogle Co. Increases Yearly

Announcement that the state of Illinois is considering the purchase of 200 acres of The Pines in Ogle County, near Pio, for a state park brings out some interesting figures relative to the purchase price now and the figure which it could have been obtained 23 years ago, when the proposal was first considered.

In 1903 the Ogle county pine forest, the last stand of native white pine timber in the state, could have been purchased for $30,000. The bill was put through the senate and house, but Governor Yates killed it with a veto. Options had been obtained on a tract of 400 acres at $30,000, which was considered an extravagance by Yates.

Recently efforts were unsuccessfully made to secure legislative action of the purchase at $75,000 of approximately 200 acres, undoubtedly a fair value today, or five times as much as was asked for the tract 23 years ago.

The pine tract is owned by several different people at the present and the chances are that the state will acquire some portion of it some day at a greatly advanced figure.

Comparison of the opportunity of 1903 and of two decades later is illuminating.

If the 400 acres of pine land could have been purchased for $30,000 in 1903 and 200 acres for $75,000 (twice-three years later, how much could our great grandchildren have to pay for a couple of trees. Procrastination by this state is growing more costly year by year.

Ham and Eggs, White Toast, Bad Breakfast

Chicago, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Ham and eggs and white bread toast are an unbiologic breakfast, Dr. A. L. Walters of Tulsa, Okla., says.

The biologic breakfast includes fruit, a poached egg and brown bread toast. And you'd better eat your teeth, he warns.

His precepts and an example were before the Chicago Dental Society meeting here today. To his advice for adult teeth, Dr. M. H. Kilip, Chicago and Dean A. D. Black of Northwestern University Medical School add some for children.

Dr. Kilip makes suggestions of the proper management of the child in the dentist's chair. He thinks there are but four types of children—good, nervous, spoiled, and stubborn.

"You can get the good child and the nervous child into the dentist's chair," he says, "but the spoiled and stubborn child often has to be spanked into it."

This is not necessary if Dr. Black's recommendations are followed.

At the age of three, he advises, make a holiday of the child's trip to the dentist. Let him sit in the chair, get acquainted with the equipment and finish off the excursion with a painless tooth cleaning.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Tangerines, cereal, thin cream, scrambled eggs, eye muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Noodle soup, toasted rye muffins, peach butter, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, mashed potatoes, gravy, parsnip fritters, fruit salad, coconut macaroons, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Yorkshire pudding is a delicious addition to roast beef. It should not be used often enough to become an everyday affair but occasionally as an especial treat. The serving of the Yorkshire pudding in this particular menu makes a dessert quite unnecessary.

Two eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, beef drippings from roast.

Mix and sift flour and salt and put into mixing bowl. Make a well in the center of the flour and add the egg, unbeaten. Stir, gradually mixing in the flour from the sides. Add the milk a little at a time, beating to keep smooth. When about half the milk is used and a thick smooth batter is formed beat well for ten minutes. Beat in the rest of the milk. Cover and let mixture stand for at least one hour. Thoroughly grease a shallow pudding pan with drippings from the roast beef. Heat pan and drippings in the oven. While heating the pan beat the batter hard with a slotted spoon. Pour into the pan which must be hissing hot and bake for 15 minutes in a very hot oven. Reduce heat and bake 20 minutes longer. Cut into squares and serve at once.

IDEALIST OR CYNIC, WHO IS WISER?

Once upon a time a very sour-minded man, who was altogether too cynical for any earthly use, was by mistake invited to deliver the commencement address at a certain large university.

As he strode to the platform and looked out at the hundreds of bored young faces in front of him, he thought of the volumes of grief that had been inflicted upon graduating classes in this country during the past century or so. And so he said:

"My dear young people, I might follow precedent and tell you the usual things about honesty and courage and perseverance, and the value that they are supposed to have in the world which you will shortly enter. I might exhort you to have vision and faith and tolerance. I might urge you to bend your efforts, as part of the educated minority, to the task of making America a better place to live in. I might even tell you that a clear conscience amid rags is better than the remembrance of guilt amid riches.

"I say, 'I might.' But I will not.
"In the first place, a good 50 per cent of you are going to become bond salesmen on the strength of your fathers' connections, and as such you would disregard all weak-kneed idealism. A few of you will stay in college and become teachers or ministers or research workers; and you will have far more opportunity to discover the value of a clear conscience amid rags than I have had. And the rest of you forget what I said anyhow.

"So I am going to tell you that you will find this world very different from college life. You will find honesty and perseverance drugs on the market. You will find the hand-shaker and the bluffer gaining wealth while the persevering struggler has to wear reversible cuffs. Be tolerant and intelligent if you will, but keep it dark; such things lead to your being an object of suspicion to your neighbors. Have no visions, or if you have, say nothing of them; they would only make you unpopular.

"For you are entering a world which prizes the cheap and the sensational and the shoddy, and despises all that requires any expenditure of mental effort. It is a world whose politics is marked by cowardice and vanity, whose economic system is featured by the creed of 'him which has, gets.' I feel somewhat sorry for you, to think of the way the world will disillusion you. Goodbye, and God help you."

Now this cynical old gentleman was really presenting a truthful account of the world as he had found it. And, when you stop to think it over, he wasn't far wrong. But the young men laughed at him, for they were young and youth is never cynical, though it often pretends to be.

And the strange part of it is that these young men, from their seclusion, knew more about the world than the old crouch, who had spent 60 years in the harness. For they, with the vision of youth, knew that at bottom the world is, after all, a place of decency, kindness and truth; while he had been deceived by appearances into thinking it was not.

In the course of time these young men went out into the world and were, as the speaker predicted, disillusioned. But it was not until they had, with their splendid young enthusiasm, contributed their bit to the slowly rising tide of hope and faith that is destined, some day, to cover the spinning world.

And that's always the way. The young men come on, year after year, with courage and high resolve; and before we make them entirely cynical they give us some of those qualities, and we learn that the earth after all, isn't quite as bad as we think it is.

OPPORTUNITY.

Would you be a benefactor to America?
Invent a game that calls for real exercise, combines a large measure of skill and a portion of chance, and revives latent desire for combat. Be sure it is a game which will attract thousands to play it, but few to watch it. Then "sell" it (you find the way) to the public.

Baseball is good sport, but it is the bleacherites that need exercise, not the already fit athletes.

CRITICS.

Edgar Selwyn, American play producer, tells Britishers through an interview in a London newspaper that "America has suppressed the dramatic critic" and he therefore should be abolished.

Which is all very well from the play producer's standpoint, for American critics have fallen into the unpleasant habit of telling the truth about plays.

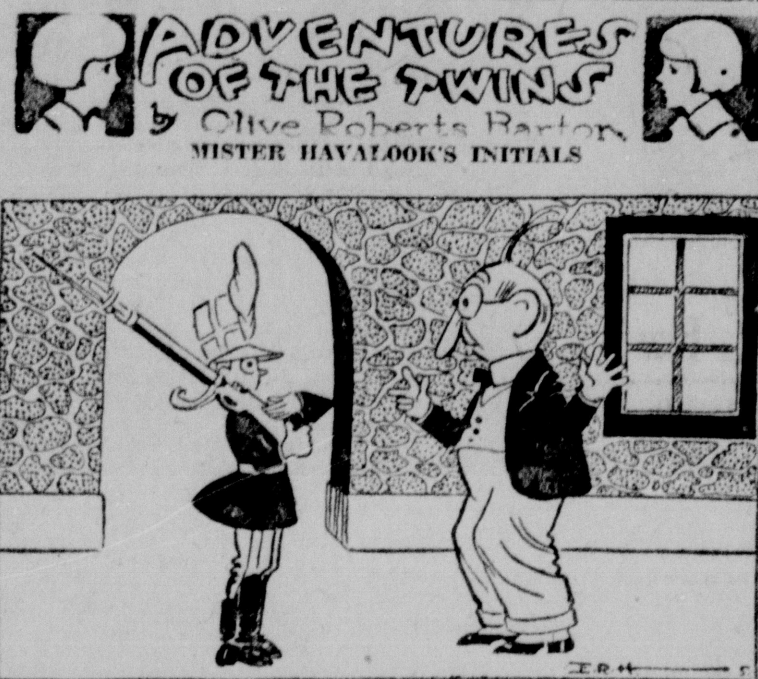

Perhaps criticism is being overdone, but if it shortens the life of one smutty play or lengthens the run of an excellent production, it has justified itself.

There should be a fortune in dyeing Christmas neckties another color.

Nothing makes us madder than seeing a coal man frowning during the winter months.

Only a few more shopping months before bathing girls will be back on the magazine covers.

"I just wanted to say," said the Tin Soldier, saluting.

"For a dunc. I just wouldn't stand it. And one day I jumped out of the window and came here."

"We want a word," said Nancy, not paying the slightest bit of attention to Belinda, "that means 'happy' but begins with 'p'."

"Prosperous," said Calamity Jane, who was feeling quite set up since she had gotten a wedding veil. She insisted on wearing it even if she had no husband because if she didn't, she said, Saylor Sam would always be borrowing it for a sail for his starch-box boat.

"That's good, but too long," said poor Mister Havaloek, almost forgetting about the corners of his mouth and looking quite doleful.

"Pleasant," squeaked Jack-in-the-Box, who had had his neck fixed, and who insisted upon being heard on every occasion.

"Good, also, but still too long," said poor Mister Havaloek.

"Playful," piped up Teddy Bear, who spoke very mildly always, for such a fierce creature.

"I'm not playful!" declared poor Mister Havaloek. "I'm a hard working fairman if ever there was one."

"Popular!" said Mrs. Jiggs.

"Profound!" said Linber Long Legs.

"Proper!" said Miss Pithers.

"Peaceful!" said the Rag Doll.

But none of them were much good. Poor Mister Havaloek said it wasn't worth while changing his name for any of them, and I think he was right. He'd just as soon be called 'poor' as 'peaceful' he said.

"I know a word," said Nancy. "Why don't you call yourself 'Plucky' Mister Havaloek. It means happy and brave, too."

"Hurrah!" shouted all the Hidy Go people. "Three cheers for plucky Mister Havaloek!"

36 Mister Havaloek didn't have to change his initials after all.

Scouting in Lee and Ogle Counties Area

NOTE: A special column devoted to the interest of Scouting in Lee and Ogle Counties will be a feature appearing every Tuesday in this paper.

The annual report which has been submitted by the Executive to the National Council shows the following data:

Twelve troops are now registered with an enrollment of 263 boys.

Troops in process of organization are: two in Dixon, two in Rochelle, one in Polo, one in Ambury and one in Oregon.

The Knot Board Contest now in operation has been very well received by those troops whose members are far enough advanced to undertake such a project, and it will be interesting to see the result of the work of the boys in the different communities.

Mt. Morris and Oregon have already put in claims for the first prize.

Troop No. 1 at Rochelle has already filed its list of boys and there is a waiting list large enough to fill two additional troops.

Troop Two of Dixon will be entertained by the K. of C. Club on the evening of the Scout Anniversary, Monday, February 8. Additional notice of this will be given later.

Local headquarters expects to announce the registering of Troops three and four of Dixon in the next bulletin.

The series of talks and demonstrations given by the Scout Executive in the schools throughout the Council Area have been well received by the boys and also appreciated by those in charge of the schools.

Troop No. 1 of Oregon reports the registering of two more Scouts and Scoutmaster Todd has now also reached his quota of a full troop.

A Bird House Contest with the first prize in each district of a period of camp fire will be one of the next important notices sent out from Scout headquarters. Watch for it.

Troop One of Oregon will give a public demonstration of Scouting in the Auditorium at Oregon on Thursday evening Feb. 11. This will be one of the special features arranged for the Anniversary Week. The new Tenderfoot Scouts will be invested with their pins and also those who have completed their Second Class tests will receive their rewards.

Troop One has now filed its quota.

The Executive Committee of the National Council on Badges and Scout Requirements have announced the creation of the Rank of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster. This rank is now official for First Class Scouts sixteen years of age and over.

Troop One of Dixon leads in the number of Merit Badge registered Scouts. Troop one of Oregon is second.

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

Sleeping sickness, known in medical circles as lithargica encephalitis, is an acute infection probably due to a specific virus.

The specific nature of the cause of this disease, however, is still in doubt. It is thought that the organism which causes sleeping sickness probably finds entrance to the body through the nose and throat, and like lithargica it has a special affinity for the nervous system, particularly the brain.

Sleeping sickness in most instances comes on gradually with a headache, dizziness, disturbance of vision, changes in speech, difficulty in swallowing, weakness, low fever and sometimes a peculiar mask-like expression of the face and a state of lethargy. There is practically always some involvement which may result in facial paralysis and paralysis of one or more of the extremities. In many of these cases there is more or less muscular stiffness.

The disease is slow in development and long in duration. The period of convalescence is variable. In some cases recovery is completed within two weeks after the acute symptoms subside. In other cases, however, the disease is prolonged and leaves its record on the mind, on certain muscles and on the nerves of the cranium. It would appear, however, that the mental troubles usually, though not necessarily, pass off eventually.

Outbreaks of sleeping sickness have frequently appeared after epidemics of influenza. Some investigators hold that sleeping sickness is really due to an attack of influenza that has invaded the central nervous system of the body.

The preventive measures are those for the prevention of influenza and other diseases that are transmitted by means of the secretions from the nose and mouth. Patients suffering from influenza should for their own good as well as for the protection of others remain in bed. If this one protective measure were observed, the prevalence of influenza as well as of common colds would diminish.

THE VERY IDEA

by Hal Cochran

TUM, TE, TUM, TUM

There's one old-fashioned habit that, it seems, we'll always keep. It's rocking little babies till they drop away to sleep. It furnishes a treat for any parent, any night, to take a little youngster and to cuddle it up tight.

It's always been a rule that you must hum a little tune. There's something rather soothing when you hear a person croon. A tiny tot will snuggle when you take it on your knees, and humming seems to make a baby feel at ease.

I've known a lot of fathers who could never sing a note. It wasn't meant that music ever should travel from their throat. And yet, they'll sit and try it; watch the satisfaction come from a sleepy little infant, as they hum, to hum, to hum.

Oh, I know just how it happens. I've a baby of my own. I rock and sing, and thrill her with a draggy monotone. To anybody else 'twould be a hum, te, te, tum, tum, but she, to her, they're wonderful—the crazy tunes I hum.

People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones when they're in a position to "say it with flowers."

Isn't it odd—the queer little things a wife can think of to say, to cheer her hubby? For instance, "the furnace is out."

It's unfortunate that some folk have to get married to find out what love is.

Wee Miss Weep was a tot who cried. Whenever her shoestrings came untied. But now her tears have dried away. Cause she goes barefoot every day.

(P. S.—Don't read the above until last summer.)

NOW, HONESTLY—

Maybe you really believe that revenge is sweet.

And that's an admission that you haven't taken a second thought.

For, after all, no one gets a kick out of "getting even" with someone else. Chances are, you worry more about it than the person you "get even" with.

If someone else does you a bit of wrong—make the best of it. Most humans feel worse about it, afterwards, if you just let it slide.

At least, you don't lower yourself to whatever level the wrong-doer is on.

If it weren't for its bloomin' body bein' so far from its head, the ostrich wouldn't have such a long neck.

A man can easily drive his argument home by letting his wife sit in the back seat.

FIGHT FAN: Wasn't that a wonderful hand the fighter got when he entered the ring?

ANOTHER: Yeah, but did you see the one he got just before he left?

They tell me there are only seven original jokes—and I've never heard any of them.

PILL-SLAVE FREED FROM CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought natural relief in a few weeks

A remarkable, convincing tribute is paid Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in this letter from Mr. F. C. Aminsen, of Seattle:

"I suffered with chronic constipation for many years and was compelled to use pills every night, but since I got your Kellogg's ALL-BRAN it works fine. I would not be without it. I was so dreadfully sick of being constipated. Now it is so different. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works so naturally and is pleasant to take."

F. C. AMINSEN, Kenney, Seattle, Washington.

You can get permanent relief from constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN if eaten regularly. Two tablespoons daily—or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it because it is ALL-BRAN. It does a job only ALL-BRAN can do. Part-bran products may not do any good at all.

Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream. Use it in cooking. Try the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Served by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by grocers.

Pilate an Arch-Villain Throughout His Career

Chicago, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Pontius Pilate the Roman procurator who condemned Jesus, was a political arch-villain throughout his career, it is revealed in a thesis prepared at the University of Chicago by Miss Dorothy M. Harjez. He is so pictured in the German legends of which she made a study, but the Coptic Christians count him a martyr and place him in the Abyssinian church calendar.

Pilate compelled the Jews, over whom he ruled, to pay divine honors to the Roman eagles and standards of the Emperor Tiberius, he stole the temple treasure to build an aqueduct to carry water into Palestine and ruthlessly slaughtered a company of Galileans engaged in an act of sacrifice, Miss Harjez found.

The consequences of his evil deeds overtaking him, Pilate was banished to Vienne in Gaul and there committed suicide.

Reuben Dinges had his tonsils and adenoids removed by Dr. Angear last week.

Harriet Hatch, baby daughter of Charles Hatch, Jr., has been ill with influenza.

Mrs. Harrison May of Rockton is a patient in the Angear hospital.

Mrs. Forrest Finn of Chicago and Mrs. Frank Herman of Sublette left the hospital Saturday with their babies.

THE REMARKABLE EXTENT OF HOUSE'S POWER IN THE WILSON ADMINISTRATION NOW TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME
COL. EDWARD M. HOUSE will release his Memoirs for publication in the Chicago Herald and Examiner beginning Sunday, January 31.
Col. House, private citizen, whose name loomed larger than that of most officials in Wilson's administration, was often called the "man of mystery." His importance was known, and his power suspected, but the full import of his surprising relation with President Wilson has never been disclosed. In these papers, House reveals every phase of this remarkable relationship.
Col. House was the closest friend that Wilson had. Wilson himself admitted House's importance, and his dependence on him. Someone asked him who Col. House was, and he said:

Colonel House reveals the real Wilson
"Mr. House is my second personality. He is my independent self. His thoughts and mine are one. If I were in his place I would do just as he suggested. . . . If any one thinks he is reflecting my opinion by whatever action he takes, they are welcome to the conclusion."
Documents and letters cover every phase of their relationship. Col. House kept a day-to-day record of all happenings. From this diary, and from letters and other documents, Col. House has compiled this extraordinary history.
In their revelation of the true Wilson, and in their explanation of matters that have long been state secrets, these Memoirs of Col. House have never been equalled in our time for vital interest and importance to the public.

Breaking Hundred is Goal of All Golfers

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Breaking 100 is as much to the greatest golf experts as it is for the veriest duffer at the game, and the star finds his objective just as difficult to attain. The difference lies in the fact that the champion wants to cover 27 holes in 100 while the garden variety desires only to score that number of strokes for 18 holes.

How much more difficult the expert's goal is of attainment, is shown by the fact that only in a few instances and under favorable circumstances has a star performer totaled 100 for 27 holes. Bobby Jones did it once and so did Walter Hagen. Bill Mehlhorn turned the trick at Youngstown in the final day of the western open to finish runner-up to MacDonald Smith and there have been a few other instances. Almost invariably these scores have been recorded on links that were pronounced comparatively easy.

There is no disgrace in the inability to reach this goal, for it means that they must average three or four strokes to the hole on each nine. To do this, they must acquire a dozen birds and probably a couple of eagles for their cards.

Explains Advance in Price of Golf Balls

Chicago, Jan. 28.—(AP)—While the cost of refined rubber used to make a dozen golf balls used to be 21 cents, it is $3.66 today, an increase of 500 per cent, Douglas Tweedie, said, in explaining the recent advance in the price of balls.

The price of crude rubber has fallen but the 1926 golf balls had to be made from material bought while the price was high. A dozen balls weigh only 19.44 ounces, so that if they could be manufactured of raw rubber the cost of the material would be only $1.21 a box.

In olden times when balls were made of leather stuffed with feathers or later were hammered out by hand from impure gutta percha, golfers were more careful to conserve the one or two balls they possessed. Mr. Tweedie said, "A man wears out four $50 automobile tires, the price of which have gone up more than 50 percent in the last year, in running 10,000 miles and thinks nothing about it, so why complain about golf balls which are cheaper than they were a few years ago when one can play as many miles of golf at the same cost with proper care."

USE OF RESIN IN BIG LEAGUES MAY STIR UP BATTLE

Heydler's Proposal is Meeting Opposition From Johnson

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Resin, a commodity necessary to violinists, pugilists and trapeze performers, threatens to raise a whirling cloud of dust in the realm of baseball.

The matter of reintroducing the substance to the national game will come before the annual session of the baseball rules officials here today. President Heydler, of the National League, seeking to curb the steadily mounting instruction of baseballs in major league play, has recommended that the substance be made available to pitchers that they may better control the ball.

He would have a bag of resin placed within reach of the box men to be dealt out at the discretion of the umpires. Under present conditions, when a pitcher throws two or three wild ones in a row a new ball is called for and the old one, to all intents and purposes, goes out of the major leagues.

Meets Opposition

The proposal came forth during the meetings of the leagues here in December and there was an effort to gain the American League's interest. One manager, former major league performer, declared that the use of resin would bring back all the tricks of pitching that had made the game dangerous before foreign substances were ruled out.

President Johnson of the American League named Umpire George Moriarity, former Detroit player, to investigate the matter for that circuit and Moriarity making tests in Chicago yesterday, showed much "stuff." He insisted that he had duplicated the famous saucer pitched by Eddie Cicotte of the White Sox, who took the secret with him when he was black listed after the tainted world series of 1919 between the White Sox and Cincinnati Reds.

BAN OPPOSES RESIN

Chicago, Jan. 29.—(AP)—President Johnson of the American League has placed in the hands of the American League members of the rules committee a complete report on the use of resin by a pitcher on a baseball. He believes that the demonstration as given by Moriarity substantiates his claim that the use of resin will enable the pitchers to bring back many of the freak deliveries which have been so objectionable.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE MIRACLE" Coming to the Auditorium, Chicago, Chicago will see "The Miracle." That significant announcement, the most momentous in theatrical annals, is made by Morris Gest, who will present the great Max Reinhardt music-drama pantomime and super-spectacle in the Auditorium Theatre, Chicago, for six weeks, beginning February 2.

As the time draws near for the opening performance of "The Miracle" keen anticipation on the part of people throughout this section is aroused. This is apparent from the great number of mail orders that have been received. The regular sale of seats for all performances of "The Miracle" opens in the Auditorium box office on Tuesday, January 19th, but mail orders will continue to be filled.

Chicago will be the sixth city in America to witness "The Miracle," which has been shown in eighteen leading capitals of Europe. Three times has the presentation of "The Miracle" in this country been a civic enterprise—in Cleveland, the first city after New York to see "The Miracle" in Cincinnati, and in St. Louis, bidding guarantees to close to a million dollars.

A company of 600 people will appear in "The Miracle" in Chicago. The leading roles will be played by those who created them in New York, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Boston and St. Louis—Lady Diana Manners, the English society leader, who rose to fame over the personation of the statue that comes to life, Miss Iris Tree, daughter of the late Sir Horner Beecham-Tree, in the role of the Nun; and Miss Ellen Patterson, daughter of Joseph Medill Patterson, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, alternating in the role of the Nun.

"No one who was not in Cleveland last winter, nor in Cincinnati, Boston and St. Louis this season," says Mr. Gest, "can fairly realize what the coming of 'The Miracle' means to a city. For the weeks it is present, the community simply becomes a festival center, with countless thousands coming from hundreds of miles in every direction to see 'The Miracle.' Realizing this and out of pride in this great undertaking, people look upon the presentation of 'The Miracle' as a great art convention.

"The beautiful 15th century cathedral-transformed Chicago Auditorium will have unusually fine sight lines, and the acoustics will be perfect, providing splendid chances for the visual and musical aspects of 'The Miracle' to be enjoyed there. Musically, as in every other way the Chicago production will be equal to that in New York. I am inclined to think that the Chicago production will eclipse all others.

Einar Nilsen, Swedish composer, who has conducted twenty productions of "The Miracle" in Europe and this country and who wrote the score of von Hofmannsthal's imposing "The Great World Theater," the feature with "The Miracle" at last summer's Salzburg Festival, will be in charge of the orchestra and huge chorus. Friedrich Schirmer, who revised and extended Professor Engelbert Humperdinck's original score of "The Miracle," will also be here.

"There is no question in my mind as to the response of 'The Miracle' in Chicago. 'The Miracle' is a household word all over America—indeed, all over the world. Earlier this season in Boston I received a letter from Lewiston, Montana, ordering tickets for the production of 'The Miracle' in the Boston Opera House! Not only has its fame traveled from coast to coast, but it is internationally famous, as few things have ever been in the history of the theater. The tremendous ovation it received in the Little Austrian town of Salzburg last summer proves that, far the audiences were made up of travelers who had come from every country to see it, including such famous men as Arnold Bennett, Richard Strauss, Franz Moirar, and many others.

With the regular sale of seats for all performances of "The Miracle" opening in the box office of the Auditorium Chicago, on Tuesday, January 19th, mail orders also will be continued to be filled in the order of their receipt. Railroads entering Chicago are arranging for special rates to bring the people to see "The Miracle," and to run special excursion trains from distant as well as near points for this purpose.

MERCIER LOVINGLY Laid to Rest by HIS PEOPLE TODAY

Throngs Paid Tribute to Belgium's War Hero Cardinal

Malmes, Belgium Jan. 29.—(AP)—The body of Belgium's heroic war cardinal, Desire Mercier was enshrined today in Malmes, the seat of his archbishopric and the scene of his long years of struggle and triumph.

From the archiepiscopal palace, to which it had been returned after yesterday's elaborate state funeral in Brussels, the casket was borne in solemn procession—preceded by a great silver cross—to the cathedral of St. Rombaut, and there entombed in the crypt.

The entire route from the palace to the cathedral was lined with soldiers, who presented arms as the cortege slowly passed, while the great crowds bowed and the men uncovered in the rain in token of respect to their great spiritual leader and fellow patriot.

Was Religious Service The ceremony was of a deeply religious character with less of pageantry than marked the service in the capital. Hymns and prayers chanted by the marchers, mingled with the strains of Chopin's Funeral March, played by military bands, while the robes of the prelates, swaying as they walked, added to the solemnity of the scene.

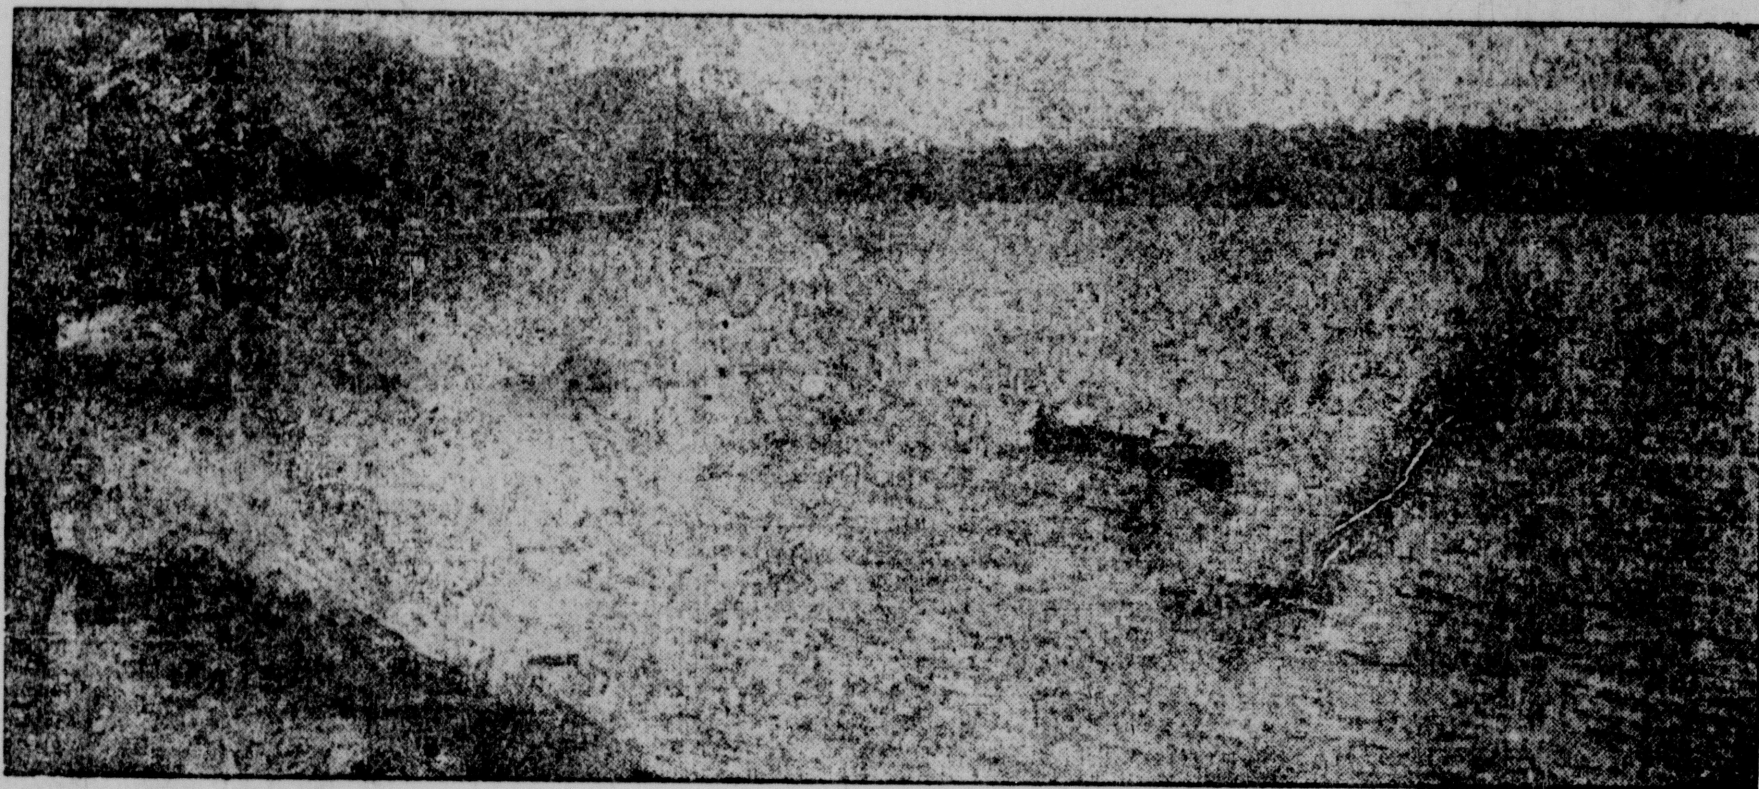

As the procession neared the cathedral the crush of the crowds became so great that the gendarmes were unable to preserve order. Intent only upon entering the edifice to witness the final service, many lost hats, umbrellas and personal belongings, while several women fainted. A quarter of an hour elapsed before order was restored.

Bishop Waffelaert of Bruges officiated at the service. After the funeral oration absolution was pronounced by five Belgian bishops according to rank and age.

When the service was ended, the crowds which had been unable to enter the cathedral before were admitted and thousands passed by the coffin before it was placed in the crypt.

The office of the postoffice inspector here had no advice from inspectors at work on the case, but were inclined to believe that the sack had been placed on the wrong train and that it would soon be found.

The pouch, however, was said to have been missed when a truck driver began to transfer his load to a Chicago-bound train.

Did You Ever Stop to Think—

BY
E. R. Waite, Secretary,
Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

RALPH W. TRUEBLOOD, MANAGING EDITOR OF THE LOS ANGELES TIMES, SAYS:

THAT advertising is no longer something which benefits the man with goods to sell at the expense of the man who buys them.

THAT advertising has so nurtured competition and has thereby so far improved commercial products that its principal beneficiary has become the man who buys.

THAT advertising has, in general, so extensively adopted the policy of honesty, sincerity and conservatism as to be accepted at face value by nearly every reader of the public prints.

THAT the dishonest advertisement gets kicked out of the modern newspaper or magazine office just as quickly and heartily as does the dishonest news item or the plagiarized article.

THAT advertising has become one of the greatest of literary arts and it is enlisting as copy-writers such masters of the written word as Irvin S. Cobb and such famous illustrators as the Layendecker brothers, Charles D.

Good Thoughts for Good People

Unless we can overcome our international fears and hates, our envy and our greed, and our indifference toward other nations, we shall inevitably sooner or later drift into another more destructive world war, for such wars are the inescapable outcome of precisely such qualities of thought. And if we do overcome them and find the means of unity and practical brotherhood among all mankind, we shall find not alone peace and prosperity, but a freedom and inspiration which will lift humanity forward to a happiness it cannot now understand.

The Christian Science Monitor.

Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.

Christ Jesus.

No nation can last, which has made a mob of itself, however generous at heart. It must discipline its passions, and direct them, or they will discipline it, one day, with scorpion whips.

Ruskin.

There can be no secure peace now but a common peace of the whole world; no prosperity but a general prosperity, and this for the simple reason that we are all now brought so near together and are so pathetically and intricately interdependent, that the old notions of noble isolation and national sovereignty are magnificently criminal.

James Harvey Robinson.

We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take upon you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

Paul.

WHAT'S THE USE.

CONTRACTS FOR TWO AIR ROUTES IN ILLINOIS LET

Service From Chicago to
St. Louis and Ft.
Worth Next

Washington, D. C.—For the first time in history matters of transportation by air, water, rail and motor, all affecting Illinois directly, are under consideration in Washington at one time.

The post office department has perfected its agreements with two private air lines to establish mail carrying routes across Illinois to St. Louis and Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas. Both these lines will be put into operation as soon as the contracts have all equipment assembled. The Chicago-St. Louis line, on which daily stops will be made at Peoria and Springfield, will be operated by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation of Annapolis, Md., which will receive 67 1/2 percent of the total revenue from postage. The line from Chicago to Texas, including a stop at Moline, will be operated by the National Air Transport, Chicago, which will receive 50 percent of the revenue, the higher return being due to the long haul which covers 957 miles in each direction.

Waterway Bill U.S.
The question of improved water transportation for Illinois is involved in the Illinois deep waterway bill, which will receive extensive consideration before Congress adjourns, according to the present outlook. Construction of the waterway will insure lower rates on slow moving freight to the entire state, in conjunction with the Ohio and Mississippi waterways, its proponents declare.

For western Illinois the signing of a contract by the Secretary of War with the Upper Mississippi River Barge company, St. Paul, Minn., for operation of a large line on that river above Cairo gives promise of new transportation advantages in the shape of a continuous water haul to New Orleans. The Upper Mississippi River Barge company has agreed to pay a competent terminal engineer to advise upper river cities, including Quincy, Moline and Rock Island as to the type of river terminals they should construct to effect prompt rail connection at the loading points.

Protest Rail Report
The favorable report given the Gooding long and short haul bill by the Senate interstate commerce committee has roused transportation experts in all downstate cities to protest against the measure, which would prohibit the authorization of rail freight rate reductions by the Interstate Commerce commission on long hauls to meet water competition. The Illinois Manufacturers' association is joining the fight on the bill, on the ground that it would forever close the path to lower rail freight rates from Illinois to the seacoasts to meet water competition. This in turn might deprive the railroads of so much of their present business as to cause financial difficulties.

The Cummins bill giving the federal government power to regulate interstate traffic by motor bus has not yet received consideration, but the general belief is that some such authorization will be granted by Congress before its adjournment, inasmuch as it is favored by bus operators' associations in a number of states including Illinois.

"Why is the grocer who owns

Here is the answer:

His creed of service—like that

He is a builder. He adds his part in character and employment to the welfare of your

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

By GERTRUDE S. &amp; WENTWORTH-JAMES

 "The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted" with Irene Rich, is a pictorialization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Bledsoe, politician, has confessed to John Mannering, district attorney, that the finding of Mrs. Mannering in a notorious inn when it was raided was the result of a plot to accomplish his defeat for reelection. The two men are spending a suburban town where Mrs. Mannering and Diane Bledsoe are, when they see a forest fire ahead and fear for the safety of the wife and the daughter.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

Bledsoe got to his feet, bending forward, and a great fear was in his eyes.

"There is only one forest in that direction. It surrounds my lodge. Diane is there."

"And Meadville?" said John softly, his face ghastly white.

"Yes, and Meadville!" cried Bledsoe, and shouted at his chief fear: "Drive, drive, man, drive as you never drove in your life before!"

So long and so heavily did Eileen sleep that when she awoke her faculties were befogged for a time. This strange, shabby little room . . . was she still dreaming? Ah, . . . she remembered now. . . . Bob. . . . John. . . . surely it was all a dream? She must really wake up. Such horrible things were not possible. But those hoarse, excited shouts . . . that sound like the tramp of running feet on a wooden sidewalk? Was that a woman's scream? . . . What could have happened? And this strange red glare which lighted the room so fitfully, was it . . . day. . . . sunlight?

Diane Bledsoe drew back to cringe against a post.

Bewildered, Eileen sat up on the edge of the bed and coughed, then she rubbed her eyes. How they smarted! This heavy, pungent, resinous odor . . . pine . . . smoke? She leaped to her feet and made for the window.

She gasped. Was this the end of the world? Around the edge of the great hill which overlooked the town a wall of flame, red, yellow, golden, was eating its way through the forest. Above it in a hellish pyrotechnic display sparks leaped up to the skies and great billows of smoke blotted out the stars.

Her eyes dropped to the street below. Lighted by the lurid glare of the oncoming flames a panic-stricken mass of men, women and children, bearing every conceivable burden, of plunging and excited horses, of honking automobiles, was feeling the awful red horror bearing down upon the town.

Slowly Eileen turned, but only to hesitate. She remembered everything, all. Why hurry? . . . Why struggle? . . . What did life mean to her . . . now? Why not end it all . . . here?

Then came the remembrance of Bob, and her face grew firm. She opened the door and passed out into the hall. The smoke seemed thicker, and she coughed as she groped her way amidst those unfamiliar surroundings. She reached the stairs and descended to find the room below deserted. She moved on and came out on the porch which spanned the building at the front.

A fiery glare lay over the doomed town, and the crash and roar of the approaching flames could be plainly heard. Heat as from a mighty furnace beat against her cheek. The crowd had thinned, and only a few stragglers were passing. Yet even as Eileen emerged a frightened girl stumbled up the stairs leading to the porch and paused breathless to gaze back at the approaching flames. Hardly heeding the newcomer's presence Eileen was upon the point of passing her when she turned and perceiving Eileen screamed.

"Diane!" cried Eileen, stepping towards her.

But, terror-stricken, Diane Bledsoe drew back to cringe against a post.

"I know—you've come for me! But I intend to give myself up," she cried wildly.

Startled and amazed, Eileen stared at her.

"I didn't mean to go so far—I wouldn't have let them send him to prison!" sobbed Diane.

"Who?" said Eileen, trying to get her arms about the girl and soothe her.

But Diane wrenched herself away.

"Bob!" she cried hysterically. "He didn't kill that woman—he wasn't driving the car when she was killed."

"What do you mean?" demanded Eileen with sudden fierceness.

"Well—you see, I—I—was fooling," sobbed Diane. "And Bob said, 'If you want to drive, drive.' Then he slipped out on the running board, and I—I took the wheel and gave her some gas. Then Bob shouted, 'Look out!' And before I could do anything—it happened."

"But why didn't Bob say so?" breathed Eileen quickly.

"Er—h-he must have been knocked c-cuckoo and forgot—er—he was just a good sport and wouldn't squeal," concluded Diane weakly.

Either way she had no reason to be ashamed of her son, and joy leaped up in Eileen's heart, but only to die before a great bitterness as she turned upon the sobbing girl. Her cowardice, her weakness, had wrought all the evil of the last few days. Had Diane but spoken, but told the truth! Ah, the pity of it, the crime of it! In sudden hatred Eileen clenched her fists as if to strike the girl.

A strange thing happened. Groping blindly in her grief as Diane thrust forth her hand it touched Eileen's arm, touched those muscles tense with enmity towards her. Before such helplessness the sympathy of that mother heart was quick to intervene. Her own wrongs forgotten, Eileen's face softened. With all her faults, Diane was but a child. Now her arm was about the weeping girl.

"Come," she said gently, and as falling sparks and that ominous roar recalled her to their peril, "we must go."

"No," protested Diane hysterically. "They will put me in jail!"

"Listen dear—we can't stay here. All the people have gone—look!" The nervous, staccato of Eileen's voice grew to a cry of fear.

And well it might, for that oncoming wall of flame, licking already at the edge of the town, raining a fiery shower of sparks about them and scorching them with its hot breath, was not all.

As if aroused to greater rancor by the scared mortals, feeling its approach as might a hill of disturbed ants, the flame terror had crept swiftly around the heights which overlooked the town. Now bursting forth from below, a new advance sent a blazing host of skirmishers leaping forward to close the line of escape.

Even as Eileen watched, the swift moving flames formed a veritable arch of fire above the last departing fugitives. She and Diane were alone in a town beleaguered by fire.

Still she did not despair.

"Come!" she cried, and then uncertainly: "But where can we go?"

"The river!" cried Diane, startled from her apathy and pointing to the left.

They rushed away in the direction she had indicated. At the edge of the town the encompassing flames were upon them.

"I can't—I can't!" screamed Diane as a blast of withering heat beat down upon them.

"You must!" shouted Eileen. And seizing the girl's arm she literally dragged her forward to plunge blindly into a veritable inferno of smoke and heat and of stinging flame.

Stumbling, coughing, choking, gasping for the very breath of life, they struggled on for what seemed an eternity.

New York—See-sawing up and down Broadway I dropped back stage of a certain theater long enough to shake hands with Edward Cortes, who holds a sort of the world's record for 13 years he has been a stage without once being seen by a member of the audience. You see Cortes is a member of the fire department assigned to backstage duty. And since the theater in which he stands guard is generally occupied by girl shows—Oh, for the life of a fireman!

Saw my old fellow townsman Clay Greene on his annual pilgrimage from San Francisco to the Lamb's Club Gambol. In years gone by Greene was a sort of the world's record holder by Thomas McElhan, of whom you may have heard. I believe he's in the movies, or something.

Saw Ted Lewis, who does a lot of jazz singing, fancy dancing and the rest around night clubs and vaudeville houses. But he gives full credit for his start in life to Crickie Smith, the colored barber of Circleville, O., from whence Ted hails. Ted says that as a youngster he would hang around Crickie's shop listening to barber shop harmony that would be worth its weight in convert charges if transported from Circleville.

Saw Jose Collins—or Lady Inesker, if you please—just arrived from Europe and if you will ask your granddad, perhaps he will remember a song entitled "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay." And maybe he will remember a certain Lottie Collins, who was Jose's mother and who was the Hot of that particular time. Jose disappeared from these shores about ten years ago and then came news from England that she had married a titled gent.

Saw Mickey Walker at a night club with a couple of his "box fighters." Now Mickey is quite a trainer as well as a fistic artist and if half of his boxers would keep themselves in half the form that Mickey keeps himself there might be different stories to tell. Mickey does not drink or smoke and when he swears he says "jee-buzz" or something equally profane.

Any New Yorker who knows his town is familiar with the corners and doorways in which gather members of certain cliques, professions and trades. Prizefighters have a doorway on Broadway off 43rd; for years ten showmen gathered near a certain cigar store; bootleggers are a little farther down town.

And now the jazz-band players have taken up outdoor quarters at Broadway and 46th streets.

It looks as though even jazz can be overdone for, with the hundreds of dance places, night clubs and orchestras I counted something like 200 jazz musicians looking for jobs. Since jazz banding became such a

BARBARA HAWLEY, 25, lifts her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, and gets a job on the Chicago Telegraph because she wants to see life. With BOB JEFFRIES, police reporter, and JEROME BALL, man about town, she is at a roadhouse when a promiscuous man kills himself. By means of a red scarf she connects LYDIA STACY, wealthy widow, with the case.

Mrs. Stacy likes Bruce but he repels her advances so she tells ANDREW McDERMOTT, editor of the Telegraph, that Bruce's really firm, Vale Acres, is crooked. Manners, Bruce's partner, absconds, and for the publicity given the affair Bruce blames Barbara. When Barbara's invalid mother dies the girl takes an apartment with Fancy, McDermott's daughter.

Bruce weds VIOLETTA CRANE, factory girl, through advice to her in Barbara's "Love-lorn" column. Barbara, bitter, plunges into work to try to forget. At a convention of women's clubs she sees Manners and has him arrested. Manners implicates Bruce.

Bruce goes on trial. Barbara demands Mrs. Stacy help to free him and when she refuses Barbara confronts her with the red scarf. Mrs. Stacy proves a last minute surprise witness and Bruce is acquitted.

Fancy weds Jerome Ball. Barbara is lonely. A child is born to Violette and Bruce. Then comes a letter offering her $75 a week to work for "Footlights," a New York theatrical periodical.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

BARBARA read the letter several times. Wells looked up and saw her for the first time.

"Miss Hawley," he called sharply. She laid down the letter and went to his desk. "At what hour are we to expect you down from now on?" he asked curtly. "If you will just let me know, I'll try to plan the editions of the Telegraph to conform. As matters stand now, I imagine the first edition is rather too early for you. And the paper shouldn't be allowed to interfere with your beauty sleep, of course."

Barbara was silent a moment. Then she spoke quietly. "You needn't expect me down any more, Mr. Wells. The Telegraph not only interferes with my beauty sleep. It interferes with my happiness as well."

"If you have any assignments for me today, I'll take them. But there will be no more after today."

The city editor looked at her suddenly. "Very well," he said. "You will cover the retail merchant's convention today." He turned back to his assignment book. The color had risen in his usually pallid face.

Barbara turned away, her eyes blazing. McDermott was coming through the gate from the elevator. He nodded a good morning to her and smiled. Barbara did not smile back.

When he had gone into his office and closed the door, she followed him. He was taking off his coat and rolling up his sleeves.

"Well, Barbara, what's up?" He took a cornucopia out of the desk drawer and filled it lazily. If he saw the fury in Barbara's eyes, he made no sign.

"I've just quit the Telegraph," Barbara struggled to keep her voice steady, but it shook in spite of her. McDermott did not lay down his pipe. Instead, he put it in his mouth and puffed leisurely several times before he looked at her.

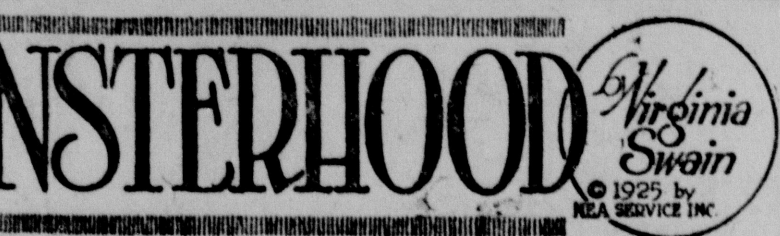

"And then Mr. Wells blew off, so the whole affair was settled and done with, quite easily," Barbara shrugged her shoulders and turned to the window.

McDermott picked up the envelope and drew out the letter. His eyes narrowed as he read it and he glanced at Barbara's back once or twice. Then he folded it up again and put it in the envelope.

"Well," he said, "it looks as if matters had shaped themselves pretty much. I suppose your heart is set on going."

Barbara's eyes shone. "Of course, it is. I've been wanting a change of scenery for weeks. And the offer is most attractive. It means Broadway and Fifth avenue and the center of things. It also means the last of your very fine city editor."

McDermott shook his head. "I'm

Barbara pulled a piece of cardboard from the bottom of the drawer. She turned it over. Bruce Reynolds smiled at her from the photograph.

fore he looked at her. When he did, his eyes were cool.

"So?" he inquired.

Barbara bit her lips. "Yes," she said and made for the door.

McDermott smiled when her back was turned. But he called after her. "How important is this fare-up, Barbara?"

She turned back. "Not particularly, perhaps, from your standpoint. But from mine, it's rather important that I shall be free from the thankless grind. In fact, it's the nicest thing that's happened in a rather dull year."

"You're quite sure you are not just acting on the spur of the moment, Barbara?" McDermott's face was grave. "I've rather counted on you, you know."

Barbara melted somewhat. "I know you have, Mr. McDermott. And that's the only thing that makes me sorry to leave the Telegraph. You have been consistently good to me."

"But Mr. Wells chose this morning of all mornings to practice his sarcasm upon me. And it wasn't a good morning to do it. That's all. I came down late today, for only the second time in the year I have been here. I meant to come in and talk to you about leaving. There are reasons why I cannot be satisfied to spend another month in Chicago."

"But when I got here, I found this," she pulled the gray envelope out of her pocket and tossed it on his desk.

"And then Mr. Wells blew off, so the whole affair was settled and done with, quite easily," Barbara shrugged her shoulders and turned to the window.

McDermott picked up the envelope and drew out the letter. His eyes narrowed as he read it and he glanced at Barbara's back once or twice. Then he folded it up again and put it in the envelope.

"Well," he said, "it looks as if matters had shaped themselves pretty much. I suppose your heart is set on going."

Barbara's eyes shone. "Of course, it is. I've been wanting a change of scenery for weeks. And the offer is most attractive. It means Broadway and Fifth avenue and the center of things. It also means the last of your very fine city editor."

McDermott shook his head. "I'm a fraction of a second, as though to speak, but went on to his desk.

A taxi driver stepped out of the elevator and the telephone operator called Barbara. By this time a group had gathered about her desk, to offer congratulations and say goodbye. She was tying her books and papers with cord and talking excitedly.

Miss Badger paused to speak to her. "Isn't this rather sudden, Miss Hawley? I noticed that you had quite an argument with Mr. Wells this morning, but I didn't suppose he would dare to do anything drastic, on Mr. McDermott's account."

Barbara smiled provocatively. "You notice a good deal, don't you, Miss Badger? Perhaps you will notice some of my work in the Footlights Magazine after Monday." She turned back to the laughing group around her.

"Goodbye, everybody. And when you come to New York, call me up and I'll show you the town." Then, to the society editor, "You'll be sure to remember to do that, won't you, Miss Badger?" She got no answer.

The taxi whirled Barbara through the familiar streets of Chicago. She looked out at them half wistfully.

Barbara's street, too, looked unexpectedly homelike to her that night. Every building was stamped upon her memory, every urchin playing in the streets formed a part of a picture that had meant home to her for many months.

Barbara struggled out of the taxi with her load of books and papers and paid the driver. So strong was the sense of her worldly rise upon her that she tipped him three times the normal amount, and ran up the steps lightly, in spite of the heavy load.

She had forgotten to order groceries for dinner. After a moment's contemplation of the larder she decided to dine in solitary grandeur at the neighborhood tea room, just around the corner, and to spend the evening in packing the things that she meant to take with her.

Telephone Conversation Between Sally Atherton and Paula Perier

"Is that you, Sally?"

"Yes, this is Sally, Paula. When did you get in?"

"This morning. Did Mrs. Prescott tell you when she would come to luncheon with us?"

"Yes. If it suits you, Paula, Leslie will lunch with us at the bazaar on the opening day. You see, she is so anxious for Karl Whitney's sake to make the bazaar a success that she is going to go over every day and make her appearance both at the flower and the jewelry booths.

"The publicity man seems to think that if you and she are seen taking lunch together, nothing more will be desired."

"I'm rather sorry, Sally, we're not going to be more secluded."

"Well, Leslie says that after you get through shooting your picture, she wants you to come to her and we'll all have a luncheon with the children. (She knew you'd like that.) Good-bye."

"Oh, wait a minute, wait a minute, Sally. I haven't got through talking with you yet."
